Hosting

Fun fact: your tuition pays for your own personal web space on the internet.

Go to mfile.umich.edu and log in with your Michigan credentials.

Click on “web sites” in the top navigation.

From there click on the checkbox for “[username] Public” and click “Prepare Selected Webspace”.

The Parts of a Static Web Site

HTML – the skeleton

CSS – the style

We'll start with HTML first.

HTML

The components: `<head>` and `<body>`

`<head>` - contains descriptive information about the page, but no actual display content.

`<body>` - contains the actual displayed content, most commonly ``s.

Index.html

Every static website contains an index.html file, which is usually the first page you see when you type in the domain name.

So when people go to <http://www-personal.umich.edu/~uniquename/>

they'll see the index.html file that you are going to create & upload to your MFile.

CSS

The selectors: #ID and .class

#ID – use this to style one, and only one, div in particular.

.class – use this to style a group of divs that have similar content.

Let's get coding.
